1 TIP #1 Use Layers Layers are built into Photoshop. What is a layer? You can use layers to organize your images. Layers are like an onion, with more layers on the inside and fewer layers on the outside. The outer layers are on top. If you need to edit all your layers, you must open every layer to edit all the versions of that layer. How do you change a layer's visibility? Viewing a layer's properties opens a box that lets you control its visibility, such as layer visibility, play, and blending modes.

TIP #2 Make Multiple Copies Several simple ways to increase the number of layers in a document include Duplicate Layer. Duplicate Layer Select the layer you want to make a copy of. Select the layer by clicking its name in the Layers palette. Shift + click on the layer name to select it. Repeat this step to make as many copies as you want.

Delete Layer. Delete Layer Select a layer by clicking its name in the Layers palette. Press Ctrl + click on the layer name. Repeat this step to delete multiple layers.

Layer Styles. Layer Styles Select the layer or layers you want to change. Press Ctrl + click on the layer name. Repeat this step to apply one of the layer styles.

2 TIP #3 Zoom and Pan You can zoom and pan images in Photoshop.

Zoom Image You can zoom in and out of an image with Zoom and Pan. Select the image in the Layers palette. Click the Zoom icon on the toolbar. Scroll the slider to zoom the image in and out. Click the page's left or right arrow key to navigate through the image.

Zoom and Pan Click the Zoom icon on the toolbar. Select the image in the Layers palette. Click the page's left or right arrow key to zoom in or out. Click and drag the image around. 3 TIP #4 Transparency Transparency lets you control how much of a layer's content appears on a particular layer. It's called transparency because it lets you see the information

This article will guide you through the process of editing photos with Adobe Photoshop Elements. You'll learn how to edit photos, how to crop images, how to add effects like texture, how to adjust colors and contrast and how to add frames to an image, and how to rename an image and save it. There are some features like layers and adjustment layers that are only available in the professional version but this guide will guide you through editing in basic steps in both versions. Photoshop Elements is not only an alternative to Photoshop but a fun hobby with a professional end result. This guide is part of a series of guides on different areas of Photoshop Elements. If you'd like a printable version of this guide with all the individual steps, see the.psd below. Creating a new image Your starting point is an image you'd like to edit. The image you use doesn't have to be perfect. If your image is lacking in some way, you can use an image stock photo to use as your starting point. Most stock photos have an imprint of the photographer and / or the company the stock photo was taken. Here are some sites to find royalty free photos. You can also create your own image. Feel free to draw, write, or do anything that gets your creativity flowing. How to create a new image You can create an image by simply dragging and dropping the background image onto the new canvas. Photoshop Elements will create a new canvas. To delete the background image, use the "white eye" icon. In your image you can also use the white eye icon to delete any objects you don't want in the image. After creating a new canvas, you can add layers, fill, type, draw, text, paint and use brushes. Photoshop Elements comes with a collection of 22 brushes you can use. To rename an image, go to File > Rename... You'll see the "Replace" field that allows you to search for your image name. A shortcut to rename an image is to hold the Shift key and click anywhere in the image window and choose Rename from the context menu.

How to crop an image To crop an image, simply drag any point on the edges of the image window. To resize an image to a certain percentage, click the small square button in Monday, September 21, 2008 If you haven't already, go check out this article on the Washington Post website. I love the first picture on the screen saver on his computer. It says, "Any Day Now" But today was truly awesome. After work on Friday, my husband and I met some friends for dinner, some drinks, and an evening game of Lucky Duck (he's my best friend's fiance and he's currently living in NY and had never played with us before). As we were driving home, my husband was using this radio station's cue and my friends and I were all talking about the gigantic storm that was coming our way. I look at my husband and say, "Chris, there's going to be a hurricane" and he looked up at me and said, "Any day now." I looked into the sky and saw a giant brown cloud in the distance. The next morning my husband was gone. I had planned to go out for a long run but I decided to lie in bed thinking of how lucky I was to have the man of my dreams there to greet me. The storm hit at around 4:30 this morning and it was epic. We were completely cut off and we watched on the news as the coast was inundated. We were lucky. My parents and brother were out of town so all we had to watch was the news. I feel like we were caught in a crossfire of something crazy. But regardless of that, we're all just glad to be alive, safe, and with each other.

Tuesday, September 8, 2008 About Me I think I've been the same my whole life. I'm not really sure what I'm supposed to be doing with my life, I don't know what I want to be when I grow up, and I know that I'm completely content with the simple things. I'm engaged to a very good guy. We were best friends when we were children and I believe that it's the best thing that could ever happen to both of us. I can't wait until I see him in August. I'm married to the love of my life. My husband and I met in college when we were in our last year of school and dated for a few months. During those few months, I fell in love. It was our first real relationship and it was beautiful. We were engaged until September of 2008. We have a dog

What's New In?

A blog about Hawaii travel, entertainment, foods and Hawaiian culture. I am Jason Nohana the founder of the blog and I am also a professional photographer, entertainer and celebrity spotter.

Hawaii is very special. It is an exotic place with something new to offer everyone. You can go to the most amazing places and see amazing things. Many tourists go to the big cities, but do you really want to?
How about the mountains, sea, oceans and beaches? Who wants to go there to do what everyone else is doing?
That is boring. Hawaii is unique in every way. It has something for everyone from the people to the places. If you have not experienced the real Hawaii yet and you have not tried the different foods, then you are missing out. There are so many things to do, but there is something for everyone. Hawaii can be very expensive to visit and it takes a great deal of money, but do not be fooled. You cannot get what you are really paying for in Hawaii. If you want to see the real Hawaii, the real lifestyle, the real people, the real culture, then you have to come and visit Hawaii. Photoshop can be great for creative people. The amazing pictures you can get with Photoshop are amazing. Do not let the cameras and the photos fool you. The photos can look fake and so can the people. You need to look beyond what is seen in the pictures. It is hard to know what is behind the scenes because the focus is on the photographer and on the people. It is impossible to get the real people in the real situations. They are only there for a few seconds and you will never see their real faces. The real Hawaii is hiding behind the cameras, but if you really want to get to know the real Hawaii then you must come and visit Hawaii. As a photographer and as a filmmaker, I come to Hawaii all the time. I always take more photographs than I do videos. The scenery and the beautiful photography are so amazing that it is the perfect place to visit. Hawaii has so much to offer, but its people are what really make it special. The people are so friendly and very warm. The nature is not only beautiful but it is fascinating to the viewers. It is important to see how the people are and what they do in their everyday life. The food is unbelievable. They have the most delicious foods. The drinks are so good. Everyone drinks during the entire trip. The people always eat out. The drinks
